Eco-Match Features in Engineering News & Mining Weekly

We're proud to share that Eco-Match was recently featured in Creamer Media's Engineering News & Mining Weekly — a publication recognised for spotlighting innovation and progress across the mining and materials handling sectors.

The editorial highlights Eco-Match's growing role in South Africa's renewable energy and infrastructure development space, focusing on how our mobile crushing and screening solutions help clients achieve cost efficiency, reduced environmental impact and improved project timelines.

"Eco-Match is bridging the gap between production efficiency and environmental responsibility," the article notes, recognising our commitment to innovation and sustainability in crushing and screening.

This feature underscores our commitment to providing high-performance, environmentally responsible solutions across diverse project environments — from large-scale wind and solar developments to infrastructure development projects.

Operational Safety & Competency Compliance

Ensuring that all Plant Operators and Site Managers hold valid competency certificates is not just a compliance requirement, it is one of our core pillars of safe and efficient site operations.

Certified staff demonstrate that they have received the necessary training to handle machinery correctly, make informed decisions and reduce unnecessary downtime and/or risk. Site managers, like Kobus van Schalkwyk who is managing our OYA Energy Wind Farm crushing and screening project in the Northern Cape, are equipped to plan, supervise and coordinate work in a way that aligns with both regulatory standards and project deadlines.

Eco-Match completes all competency certifications through our trusted partner CPME Pty (Ltd) (QCTO & CETA Accredited Compliance Training Provider) — a recognised and accredited training and evaluation body servicing the industry. Contact Yvonne Cornes at CPME (yvonne@cpme.co.za / +27 83 785 1120) to assist with your competency certifications.

Thank you once again for your support throughout this year.
We wish all our clients and partners a successful conclusion to 2025 and a prosperous start to 2026.
